bringing together environmentalism and performing arts

Latitude

17 - 20 July
Henham Park, Southwold, Suffolk

Beyond providing waste kits to everyone attending, composting and recycling facilities, and advice on how to travel sustainably, Latitude is teaming up with Arcola Theatre to produce the Theatre Arena, a fuel cell powered stage. Arcola will provide low energy LED lighting and a hydrogen fuel cell which provides electricity and clean water.

The Theatre Arena will showcase classical drama, contemporary performance, physical theatre by companies including the Royal Court Theatre, the Bush Theatre, nabakov and Paines Plough. As well, Arcola will present their series of 15-minute, writer-led plays, The Miniaturists.

See the Editor's blog for 24 July for comment on Latitude and green festivals. See also Lyn Gardner's article in the Guardian on theatre at Latitude.
